

JWOC LAOS
UPDATE
NOVEMBER
2010

In September, we saw the completion of a new building at the Phik Noy Primary School. The additional classrooms will now allow all levels of students to attend the village school. Due to the teamwork of the Phik Noy villagers, the contractor and JWOC the building was completed a month ahead of schedule!

We are now bringing Arts and Crafts to Phik Noy Primary School. In November, 11 volunteers came one afternoon and assisted the students in creating hand traced turkeys!

We are delighted to introduce our five new scholarship students! All of the new students are majoring in either English or Teaching and are excited to be volunteering as teachers in the Free Classes Program.

SUPPORT!

The students of our Free Classes at Muang Nga were more than happy to welcome the volunteers from West Point. The cadets held a self defense workshop teaching the students three different defense techniques.

In October, we celebrated the graduation of Hmong Her's class. It's the first class to complete the Starter level of the Cutting Edge curriculum and all of his students passed with flying colors!

Recently, the scholarship students received field training from one of Laos's top guides. They were able to see what a guide does every day by joining Mr. Oudone on a tour of the city. Afterwards, they sat down for a discussion about the job and its requirements.

JWOC Holiday Cards are here!

By buying the JWOC Christmas cards & sending them to your friends and family you can continue to support these projects in Laos!
